2008 SAFEST YEAR IN HISTORY

Reports of hunting related shooting incidents received to date by DEC indicate that 2008 was the safest year in the history of hunting in New York. There were 27 hunting related shooting incidents, including 4 which were fatal. This year's total of 27 compares to an average of 66 incidents per year from the 1990s, and 137 incidents per year during the 1960s.

The number of 2-party shooting incidents in 2008 was just 13, compared to the five year average of 22. However, in 2008 the number of self-inflicted incidents was above average at 14, compared to 8 in 2007.

The 2008 deer season was also the safest ever, with only 12 hunting related shooting incidents. Big game hunting incidents continue to be very low compared to the previous decade, despite the increase in rifle zones and the passage of the youth mentoring law which now allows 14 & 15 year olds to hunt big game.

This year's total of 27 brings the average for the 2000s down to 39 incidents per year which indicates that the 2000 decade will be the safest ever, continuing a 40-year trend of increasing safety.

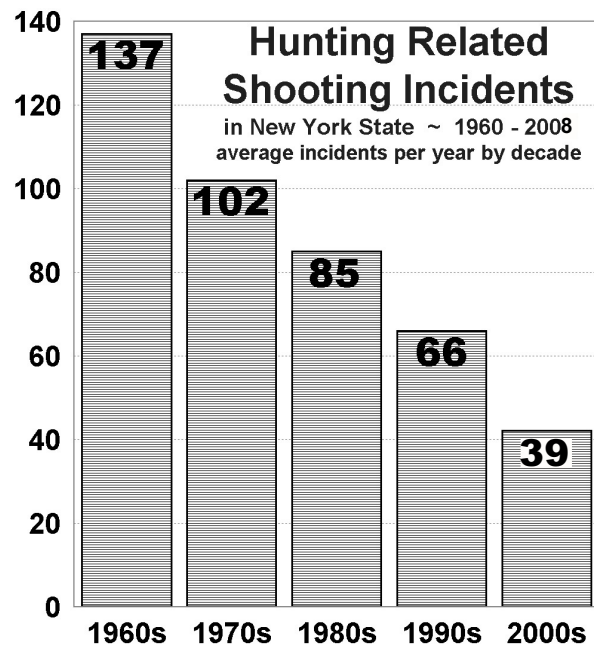

The number of hunters is declining, but the hunting incident RATE (incidents per 100,000 hunters) is falling MUCH faster than the number of hunters. During the 1960s, the incident rate was 19 incidents per 100,000 hunters. Since 2000, the incident rate is one-third of that, averaging 6.5 per 100,000.

Thanks largely to the efforts of over 3,000 dedicated volunteer Sportsman Education instructors for over 50 years, New York has an extremely safety-conscious generation of hunters.

[^] 2008 figures are compiled from preliminary reports and are NOT final. Final investigation reports may take months in some cases. Please note that in some of the incidents reported; the shooter was participating in an illegal and/or unlawful act.

The Stories Behind the Statistics: Hunting Related Shooting Incidents 2008

DRAFT Descriptions of incidents as of 2/2/09. Many of the incidents being reported here are still under investigation by NYS DEC Division of Law Enforcement. Please note that in some of the incidents reported; the shooter was participating in an illegal and/or unlawful act. More details will appear in final reports after hearings are completed late in 2009.

The most common story. Remember that 99.994% of the people who hunt have safe and enjoyable experiences. Over half a million people hunted in New York this year, and for every incident listed, there are thousands of other hunting stories of people who safely and responsibly took game. Just as important, even more passed up shots for the sake of safety, conservation, and respect for wildlife.

Many, if not all, of these incidents could have been prevented, if only the shooter and/or victim had followed the primary rules of Hunter Safety.

Assume every gun is loaded
Control the muzzle
Finger off the trigger until ready to fire
Be sure of the target and beyond
Wear hunter orange
